early to mid 1930s downtown Los Angeles quickly became the undisputed capital of Latin American cinema culture in the United States. Meanwhile the advent of talkies resulted in the Hollywood studios hiring local and international talent from Latin America and Spain for the production of films in Spanish. Parallel with these productions a series of Spanish language films were financed by independent producers. As a result Los Angeles can be viewed as the most important hub in the United States for the production, distribution and exhibition of films made in Spanish for Latin American audiences. In April 2017 the International Federation of Film Archives organized a symposium Hollywood Goes Latin Spanish Language Cinema in Los Angeles which brought together scholars and film archivists from all of Latin America, Spain and the United States to discuss the many issues surrounding the creation of Hollywood's Cine Hispano. The papers presented in this two day symposium are collected and revised here. This is a joint publication of FIAF and UCLA Film Television Archive. Collecting Movie Posters Edwin E. Poole, Susan T. Poole, 2013-05-17 Most people view movie posters as an expensive form of expendable advertising. Others however see the posters as valuable art. If you are in the latter category this is the work for you. All facets of collecting movie posters are covered in this guide book. The history of the movie poster is first presented including a look at how the early studios influenced the development of posters. Next is a brief look at the world of movie art collecting. This is followed by a reference section that provides comprehensive explanations of the most commonly used terms in the field. Getting your collection started is the next topic giving novice and more experienced collectors information on publications and materials available where to go to purchase posters where to go for help and other items. A concluding section details the proper care and handling of movie art materials along with methods for restoration.
