proposed in the book's title. After all, in some regions of the two countries, Italians eat frequently dumplings and Chinese frequently make baked, steamed or fried flatbread with toppings or fillings. Furthermore, when dumplings are made in Italy by Chinese migrants or Chinese Italians, or when pizzas are made in China by Italian migrants, Chinese Italians or Chinese without apparent ties with Italy, are these culinary products Chinese, Italian, Chinese-Italian or something else? Why do we need to care for such labeling dilemmas? This book shows how China-Italy food mobilities relayed in popular culture helped forge Chinese and Italians' socioeconomic identities in recent decades by fundamentally shaping contemporary Chinese and Italian consumer cultures. This book addresses China-Italy food cultures against the backdrop of two epoch-making socioeconomic processes. During the 1980s, Chinese cuisine became the first non-European food widely available in Italy thanks to the widespread presence of Chinese eateries. Only American fast food, which established itself in Italy around the same time, enjoyed comparable popularity as a destination for Italian culinary tourism. Meanwhile, in the early 1990s, together with American hamburgers and fried chicken, the American food chain Pizza Hut's pizzas and spaghetti were the first non-Asian foods that post-Mao Chinese customers recognized as Western. The book proposes a critical framework that analyzes transcultural food mobilities by seriously assessing the confluence of diverse mobilities and their impact on food cultures. Ultimately, the study shows that a sophisticated interpretation of transcultural food mobilities can help address alterity and build understanding in a world of increasing political and cultural polarization.

James Baldwin's Turkish Decade

Magdalena J. Zaborowska, 2009-01-16. Between 1961 and 1971, James Baldwin spent extended periods of time in Turkey where he worked on some of his most important books. In this first in-depth exploration of Baldwin's Turkish decade, Magdalena J. Zaborowska reveals the significant role that Turkish locales, cultures and friends played in Baldwin's life and thought. Turkey was a nurturing space for the author who, by 1961, had spent nearly ten years in France and Western Europe and failed to reestablish permanent residency in the United States. Zaborowska demonstrates how Baldwin's Turkish sojourns enabled him to re-imagine himself as a black queer writer and to revise his views of American identity and U.S. race relations as the 1960s drew to a close. Following Baldwin's footsteps through Istanbul, Ankara and Bodrum, Zaborowska presents many never-published photographs, new information from Turkish archives and original interviews with Turkish artists and intellectuals who knew Baldwin and collaborated with him on a play that he directed in 1969. She analyzes the effect of his experiences on his novel Another Country (1962) and on two volumes of his essays: The Fire Next Time (1963) and No Name in the Street (1972) and she explains how Baldwin's time in Turkey informed his ambivalent relationship to New York, his responses to the American South and his decision to settle in southern France. James Baldwin's Turkish Decade expands the knowledge of Baldwin's role as a transnational African American intellectual, casts new light on his later works and suggests ways of reassessing his earlier writing in relation to ideas of exile and migration.

this study reveals Walker's engagement with narrative continues beyond her early silhouette work as she moves into media such as film video and sculpture Peabody also shows how Walker uses her tools and strategies to unsettle cultural histories abroad when she works outside the United States These stories Peabody reminds us not only change the way people remember history but also shape the entertainment industry Ultimately Consuming Stories shifts the critical conversation away from the visual legacy of historical racism toward the present day role of the entertainment industry and its consumers in processes of racialization
