Field Archaeology in Britain John Coles, 2014-11-13 A practical guide to the various modern methods of discovery excavation and recording of the remains left by prehistoric man in Britain It stresses the vital role played by the amateur rescuing evidence of man's past behaviour in these islands and is illustrated by maps site plans and sections and drawings of equipment and surveying procedures Originally published in 1972 Routledge Library Editions: Historiography

Various, 2021-06-23 The greatest problem in historical scholarship theoretically and practically is the relation between historians and their subject matter The past is gone and historians can only study its remnants On what basis do scholars select certain facts from the mass of data left from the past How do they explain the interrelationship of the facts they select What criteria do they use to evaluate their subject The 35 volumes in this set originally published between 1926 and 1990 discuss and answer these essential questions faced by historians The development of historical understanding during the 18th and 19th centuries was one of the most striking features of Western culture Both historiography and historical thinking advanced as never before The historical movement of the 19th century was perhaps second only to the scientific revolution of the seventeenth century in transforming Western thought One consequence was extensive organisation and professionalization of research which the volumes in this set reflect From Coast to Fen: Archaeology in a Dynamic Landscape Claire Christie, Joshua T. Hogue, 2025-07-18 Excavations across East Lincolnshire reveal prehistoric Iron Age Roman and post medieval settlements saltmaking and industrial activity shaped by changing landscapes The area between Anderby Creek and Bicker Fen Lincolnshire to the west of the Lincolnshire Wolds represents a dynamic landscape both in terms of its natural and human aspects This volume presents the results of an extensive programme of archaeological excavation undertaken by Headland Archaeology UK Ltd and Allen Archaeology Ltd from 2018 to 2019 where a total of 15 sites were excavated The excavations uncovered a panoply of remains spanning the prehistoric through to modern periods providing important insights into changing patterns of occupation and the way this diverse landscape was utilised As evidenced through the archaeological works the area saw limited activity during the early prehistoric period in part reflecting the prevailing environmental conditions in which most of the area was inundated Among the earliest recorded finds was an enigmatic middle Bronze Age timber structure as well as a copper alloy axe During the Roman period there is evidence for an expansion in activity across the Scheme with formerly inundated areas becoming accessible Activity within the northern half of the Scheme was focused upon salt production Two of these sites were dated to the late Roman period contrary to the prevailing notion that the salt industry in this region had declined by the mid 2nd century AD Within the southern half of the Scheme were several Roman farmsteads some featuring timber buildings Notable among these was an unusual post built moated structure From these sites a range of artefactual and environmental data was collected providing important insights into the nature of agricultural regimes Evidence of medieval and post medieval activity was also uncovered providing important insights into the development of rural settlement against a backdrop of landscape and environmental changes Evidence of late to post medieval clay extraction and brick manufacture was also identified

Archaeology in the PPG16 Era Timothy Darvill, Kerry Barrass, Vanessa Constant, Ehren Milner, Bronwen Russell, 2019-02-28 The Archaeological Investigations Project AIP funded by English Heritage systematically collected information about the nature and outcomes of more than 86 000 archaeological projects undertaken between 1990 and 2010 This volume looks at the long term trends in archaeological investigation and reporting places this work within wider social political and professional contexts and reviews its achievements Information was collected through visits to public and private organizations undertaking archaeological work Planning Policy Guidance Note 16 Archaeology and Planning known as PPG16 published in 1990 saw the formal integration of archaeological considerations with the UK town and country planning system that and set out processes for informed decision making and the implementation of post determination mitigation strategies defined a formative era in archaeological practice and established principles that underpin today s planning policy framework The scale of activity represented more 1000 excavations per year for most of the PPG16 Era is more than double the level of work undertaken at peak periods during the previous three decades This comprehensive review of the project presents a wealth of data A series of case studies examines the illustrate different types of development project revealing many ways in which projects develop how archaeology is integrated with planning and execution and the range of outputs documenting the process and identified a series of ten important lessons that can be learned from these investigations Looking into the post PPG16 Era the volume considers anticipated developments in the changing worlds of planning property development and archaeological practice and proposes the monitoring of archaeological investigations in England using a two pronged approach that involves self reporting and periodic strategic overviews

R. Adams, 2013-12-11 In the last fifty years the investigation of maritime archaeological sites in the sea in the coastal zone and in their interconnecting locales has emerged as one of archaeology's most dynamic and fast developing fields No longer a niche interest maritime archaeology is recognised as having central relevance in the integrated study of the human past Within maritime archaeology the study of watercraft has been understandably prominent and yet their potential is far from exhausted In this book Jon Adams evaluates key episodes of technical change in the ways that ships were conceived designed built used and disposed of As technological puzzles they have long confounded explanation but when viewed in the context of the societies in which they were created mysteries begin to dissolve Shipbuilding is social practice and as one of the most complex artefacts made changes in their technology provide a lens through which to view the ideologies strategies and agency of social change Adams argues that the harnessing of shipbuilding was one of the ways in which medieval society became modern and while the primary case studies are historical he also demonstrates that the relationships between ships and society have key implications for our understanding of prehistory in which seafaring and communication had similarly profound effects on the tide of human affairs The Routledge Handbook of Mesoamerican Bioarchaeology Vera Tiesler, 2022-05-23 This volume brings together a range of contributors with different and hybrid academic backgrounds to explore through bioarchaeology the past human experience

Archaeology in England and Wales 1914 - 1931 T.D. Kendrick,C.F.C. Hawkes,2018-01-29 This survey of work carried out over a number of years synthesises the progress of archaeology showing at a glance the changes within less than quarter of a century on the interpretation of and reflection on knowledge in the area Entertainingly written this is a lasting introductory account of important finds in English and Welsh archaeology by two of the key researchers of the time Heavily illustrated this book showcases many artefacts as well as maps and plans offering a wealth of information The Oxford Handbook of Roman Britain Martin Millett,Louise Revell,Alison Jane Moore,2016 This handbook is currently in development with individual articles publishing online in advance of print publication At this time we cannot add information about unpublished articles in this handbook however the table of contents will continue to grow as additional articles pass through the review process and are added to the site Please note that the online publication date for this handbook is the date that the first article in the title was published online Roman Britain is a critical area of research within the provinces of the Roman empire Within the last 15 20 years the study of Roman Britain has been transformed through an enormous amount of new and interesting work which is not reflected in the main stream literature The Creation of Monuments Alistair

Oswald,Carolyn Dyer,Martyn Barber,2014-07-15 Neolithic Causewayed enclosures are amongst the oldest rarest and most enigmatic of the ancient monuments found in Europe First recognised as a distinct type in the 1920s sixty nine certain or probable examples have now been identified in the British Isles As a class they are of outstanding importance for while their precise functions remain unclear they represent the first non funerary monuments and the earliest instance of the enclosure of open space This book presents an overview of the findings of a systematic national programme of research carried out by the RCHME now merged with English Heritage Every certain probable and suggested causewayed enclosure in England has been investigated through integrated aerial and field survey Specialist reconnaissance flying has been undertaken along with the thorough analysis of aerial photographs taken from the 1920s onwards This has greatly increased the number of sites known turning the spotlight onto many that have received little or no archaeological attention in the past The aerial surveys now available offer a new basis for improved understanding Analytical field investigations of the few causewayed enclosures that are well preserved as earthworks have also squeezed fresh information out of even those long familiar to archaeologists Far from merely dotting the i s and crossing the t s of past fieldworkers these detailed surveys have led to the rejection of some long held theories and the proposal of new interpretations This book significantly advances the understanding of causewayed enclosures both as individual monuments and as a class It is a major contribution to the understanding of the British Neolithic and to landscape archaeology more generally
