Brown, 2023-08-21

When high magnitude meteorological hazards impact vulnerable human populations disasters are the inevitable consequence. Through archaeological and historical evidence this book investigates how these sudden and unpredictable events affected British medieval populations AD 1000-1500. Medieval society understood disasters in a practical sense and took steps to minimise risk by constructing flood defences and reinforcing structures damaged by storms. At the same time natural hazards were widely interpreted through a framework of religious and superstitious beliefs and a wide variety of measures were followed to secure protection against the dangers of the natural world. Disasters therefore were interpreted through a duality of understanding in which their occurrence could be the result of spiritual or superstitious triggers but practical solutions were a key component in mitigating their tangible impacts. In evaluating this duality this book focuses on specific case studies and considers both their diverse historical contexts as well as their consequences for society against the backdrop of significant demographic and climatic change as a result of the Black Death and the transition to the Little Ice Age.

Kenwood, Paintings in the Iveagh Bequest Julius Bryant, London. Kenwood. Iveagh Bequest, 2003-01-01. Set high on a ridge in historic parkland less than five miles from Trafalgar Square Kenwood is London's favourite country house. Remodelled by Robert Adam in the eighteenth century in 1928 it became the home of the Iveagh Bequest, a superb collection of old master paintings that includes Rembrandt's most celebrated self-portrait, the only Vermeer in England outside the National Gallery and the Royal Collection, Gainsborough's Countess Howe and classic works by Reynolds, Romney, Lawrence and Turner. The collection was formed between 1887 and 1891 by Edward Cecil Guinness 1st Earl of Iveagh, Chairman of the world's leading brewery who gave it to the nation with the house and estate. This book is published to mark the seventy fifth anniversary of the opening of the Iveagh Bequest and is the first new catalogue of the collection to be produced in fifty years It discusses each work revealing the personalities behind the faces in the portraits the social circumstances of each commission and the way that art met the ambitions of artists patrons sitters and collectors There are also two introductory essays that provide context for the house and discuss the ways in which Lord Iveagh was a pioneer collector Beautifully produced this catalogue of paintings is the essential book on Kenwood Climatological Data, West Virginia United States.
