Renewable Energy And The Public From Nimby To Participation:

Renewable Energy and the Public Patrick Devine-Wright, 2011 First Published in 2010 Routledge is an imprint of Taylor Francis an informa company

Renewable Energy and the Public Patrick Devine-Wright, 2014-10-14 Throughout the world the threat of climate change is pressing governments to accelerate the deployment of technologies to generate low carbon electricity or heat But this is frequently leading to controversy as energy and planning policies are revised to support new energy sources or technologies e g offshore wind tidal bioenergy or hydrogen energy and communities face the prospect of unfamiliar often large scale energy technologies being sited near to their homes Policy makers in many countries face tensions between streamlining planning procedures engaging with diverse publics to address what is commonly conceived as NIMBY not in my back yard opposition and the need to maintain democratic participatory values in planning systems This volume provides a timely international review of research on public engagement in contexts of diverse innovative energy technologies Public engagement is conceived broadly as the interaction between how developers and other key actors engage with publics about energy technologies including assumptions held about the methods used such as the provision of financial benefits or the holding of deliberative events and how individuals and groups engage with energy policies and projects including indirectly through the media and directly through emotional and behavioural responses The book s contributors are leading experts in the UK Europe North and South America and Australia drawn from a variety of relevant social science disciplinary perspectives The book makes a significant contribution to our existing knowledge as well as providing interested professionals policymakers and members of the public with a timely overview of the critical issues involved in public engagement with low carbon energy technologies

A critical approach to the social acceptance of renewable energy infrastructures Susana Batel, David Rudolph, 2021-08-25 This book provides a critical approach to research on the social acceptance of renewable energy infrastructures and on energy transitions in general by questioning prevalent principles and proposing specific research pathways and lines of inquiry that look beyond depoliticised business as usual discourses and research agendas on green growth and sustainability It brings together authors from different socio geographical and disciplinary backgrounds within the social sciences to reflect upon discuss and advance what we propose to be five cornerstones of a critical approach overcoming individualism and socio cognitivism repoliticisations recognising and articulating power relations for interdisciplinarity interventions praxis and political engagement with research and overcoming localism and spatial determinism As such this book offers academics students and practitioners alike a comprehensive perspective of what it means to be critical when inquiring into the social acceptance of renewable energy and associated infrastructures

Understanding the Energy Transition Natalia Magnani, Giovanni Carrosio, 2021-11-22 The transformation of the dominant model of centralized energy production from fossil fuels to renewable energies is at the center of the public and scientific debate as well as the subject of national and European policies as it is connected to highly topical issues such as climate change emissions reduction and natural disasters security of supply and sustainability of the current economic development model Up to now this topic has been mainly addressed by the economic and engineering sciences with a research focus on the hardware rather than on the human and social software However energy systems and the possibilities of change are not only economic or technological but involve also patterns of social life representations organizational models and relational structures In order to generate the social preconditions for the transition to a low emission society focused on a growing production of energy from renewable sources and on a greater sustainability of consumption it is therefore urgent to reaffirm the centrality of a sociological approach to energy This book focused on three core research areas which are crucial to understand what is at stake with the energy transition conflicts over the construction and location of renewable energy production plants collective action on renewable sources that promote a new model of energy system in which consumers are also producers and the social territorial impact of energy policies

International Seminars On Nuclear War And Planetary Emergencies - 48th Session: The Role Of Science In The Third Millennium Richard C Ragaini, 2016-07-28 Proceedings of the 48th Session of the International Seminars on Nuclear War and Planetary Emergencies held in Erice Sicily This Seminar has again gathered in 2015 over one hundred scientists from 43 countries in an interdisciplinary effort that has been going on for the last 32 years to examine and analyze planetary problems which had been followed up all year long by the World Federation of Scientists Permanent Monitoring Panels

Community Energy in Germany Jörg Radtke, 2023-05-31 In this ground breaking book Jörg Radtke offers for the first time within research a comprehensive insight into the range of organizational structures of community energy projects in Germany and their contribution to the Energiewende Based on nationwide quantitative survey data and in depth analyses of selected case studies of solar wind and geothermal projects Radtke documents the social structure and motivations of participating citizens He examines new forms of material participation community building and co determination within the mostly volunteer led community energy projects based on the civic engagement patterns of active green citizens The author identifies a new form of individualistic participation and collective modes of action in line with new types of project oriented participation between business politics and civil society within sustainability transformation processes of the early 21st century

Handbook on the Geographies of Energy Barry D. Solomon, Kirby E. Calvert, 2017-12-29 This extensive Handbook captures a range of expertise and perspectives on the changing geographies and landscapes of energy production distribution and use Combining established and emerging scholarship from across disciplines the expert contributions provide a broad overview of research frontiers for the changing geographies of energy worldwide Interdisciplinary in nature and broad in scope it serves to answer a range of questions and provide the reader with conceptual and methodological foundations

Low-Carbon Energy Controversies Thomas Roberts, Paul Upham, Carly McLachlan, Sarah Mander, Clair Gough, Philip Boucher, Dana Abi Ghanem, 2013-02-11 Governments big business and communities are coming under increased pressure to develop low carbon energy supply technologies Within the context of the climate change debate a delicate balance has to be reached between local environmental protection and our need for reliable low carbon energy This book brings together ten years of research conducted by the Tyndall Centre for Climate Change Research and uses a range of case studies from carbon capture and storage to on shore wind farms to explore the complex nature of disputes between a wide variety of stakeholder groups Topics covered include the importance of context the relationship between risk and trust sense of place role of the media An invaluable resource for researchers and readers in local or national government industry or community groups who wish to deepen their understanding of controversy around low carbon technology and how to overcome it

The Palgrave Handbook of Managing Fossil Fuels and Energy Transitions Geoffrey Wood, Keith Baker, 2019-11-12 This Handbook is the first volume to comprehensively analyse and problem solve how to manage the decline of fossil fuels as the world tackles climate change and shifts towards a low carbon energy transition The overall findings are straight forward and unsurprising although fossil fuels have powered the industrialisation of many nations and improved the lives of hundreds of millions of people another century dominated by fossil fuels would be disastrous Fossil fuels and associated greenhouse gas emissions must be reduced to a level that avoids rising temperatures and rising risks in support of a just and sustainable energy transition Divided into four sections and 25 contributions from global leading experts the chapters span a wide range of energy technologies and sources including fossil fuels carbon mitigation options renewables low carbon energy energy storage electric vehicles and energy sectors electricity heat and transport They cover varied legal jurisdictions and multiple governance approaches encompassing multi and inter disciplinary technological environmental social economic political legal and policy perspectives with timely case studies from Africa Asia Australia Europe North America South America and the Pacific Providing an insightful contribution to the literature and a much needed synthesis of the field as a whole this book will have great appeal to decision makers practitioners students and scholars in the field of energy transition studies seeking a comprehensive understanding of the opportunities and challenges in managing the decline of fossil fuels

Germany's Energy Transition Carol Hager, Christoph H. Stefes, 2016-09-26 This book analyzes Germany's path breaking Energiewende the country's transition from an energy system based on fossil and nuclear fuels to a sustainable energy system based on renewables The authors explain Germany's commitment to a renewable energy transition on multiple levels of governance from the local to the European focusing on the sources of institutional change that made the transition possible They then place the German case in international context through comparative case studies of energy transitions in the USA China and Japan These chapters highlight the multifaceted challenges and the enormous potential in different paths to a sustainable energy future Taken together they tell the story of one of the most important political economic and social undertakings of our time

Environmental Publics Sally Edlen, 2016-12-08 How do ordinary people think about the environment as they go about their daily lives Does thinking about the environment make them do things differently This book is the first to explore the idea of environmental publics that is the ways in which ordinary people engage with environmental issues across different practical contexts of work play and home Emphasising the practices of environmental engagement Environmental Publics examines how people consume the environment learn about it campaign for its protection and enjoy it through their leisure time But the book avoids relying on idealisations of consumers or citizens or theoretical constructs about behavioural norms that have traditionally dominated research in this field Instead this book differentiates environmental publics not by who they are but by what they are doing their daily practices It also analyses specifically the geographies of those practices how what people do affects the environment but in different ways across time and space and at different scales aspects of practices that are neglected in the literature With an interdisciplinary perspective this book will be of interest to students and scholars in geography sociology science and technology studies political science and anthropology It is written in an accessible and readable style so as to be useful for preliminary and more advanced courses in environmental management perception and policy as well as in studies of modern society consumption and environmentalism
