Developing Countries John Nash,Alex F. McCalla,2006-11-09 In the ongoing Doha Development Round of World Trade Organization negotiations developing countries have had much greater leverage due at least in part to their large and growing share of world trade But will the increased influence of developing countries translate into a final agreement that is truly more development friendly What would be key ingredients in such a final outcome of the negotiations and what would the developing countries really get out of it This two volume set seeks to answer these questions This volume Volume 1 is issues oriented It takes up some key questions in the negotiations setting the stage with a historical overview of the Doha Development Agenda to help identify issues of most significance to developing countries and then explores select issues in greater depth Volume 2 addresses the question of how a development friendly outcome to the talks would affect developing countries by quantifying the impact of multilateral trade reform It presents several different approaches to modeling the effects of the outcome of negotiations and then investigates why these and other modeling efforts produce such divergent results Aimed at policymakers and stakeholders this two volume effort puts into the public domain important analytical work that will improve the chance for a pro development outcomes of the Doha round negotiations Challenges and

Strategies of Dryland Agriculture S.C. Rao,2011-01-01 The world has made remarkable progress in maintaining adequate food supplies during the past quarter century by introducing yield increasing technologies such as better genetics crop protection products and more efficient use of fertilizers and irrigations Far more people depend on irrigation in the modern world than during the times of ancient Sumeria The spread of irrigation has been the key factor in increasing global crop yields But future scarcity present the single biggest threat to future food production The shift of water from agriculture to the growing cities and industry almost certainly will impact global food production This means that dryland agriculture will be increasingly important in meeting food requirement for the growing population Advances in plant genetics and agronomic conservation technologies when considered in concert continue to provide the greatest opportunities to achieve sustainability and profitability in dryland agriculture and will continue to be the focus of the ARS research program The ARS is please to join the crop Science Society of America and international center for Agriculture Research in Dry Areas ICARDA in sponsoring a symposium Challenges and strategies for Dryland Agriculture at the Trisocieties Annual Meeting in November 2002 at Indianapolis IN This special publication contains an impressive series of paper by international group of experts on dryland agricultural production conservation and policy The principles philosophies and technologies presented in this publication have the potential to contribute to improve food security and livelihoods for the people in dryland regions of the world

Sustainable Agriculture Zied Haj-Amor,Dong-Gill Kim,Salem Bouri,2023-12-11 Ever increasing population growth combined with ongoing climate change signals that agriculture will face great challenges in ensuring global food security by 2050 Additionally climate change driven variations in mean sea level wave conditions storm surge droughts and river flows could have serious effects on agriculture and other sectors Considering these factors and the extremely high value and necessity of agriculture worldwide effective adaptation measures underpinned by reliable climate change impact assessments are essential to conserve soil and water resources and ensure food security Sustainable Agriculture Adaptation Strategies to Address Climate Change by 2050 provides a thorough examination of these issues and presents in depth analysis practical case studies and numerous examples of adaptation options throughout for various regions of the world Features Presents up to date scientifically robust information on climate change projections in Europe Asia America Africa and Australia Provides pathways to sustainable agricultural options rather than just defining the climate change issue Includes case studies and practical examples throughout the world Presents a framework by which policymakers can begin implementing strategies for improving agricultural productivity

Growth and Productivity in Agriculture and Agribusiness ,2011 The report assesses the World Bank Group s support for growth and productivity in the agriculture sector Enhancing agricultural growth and productivity is essential to meeting the worldwide demand for food and to reducing poverty particularly in the poorest developing countries Between 1998 and 2008 the period covered by this evaluation the World Bank Group WBG provided 23.7 billion in financing for agriculture and agribusiness in 108 countries roughly 8 percent of total WBG financing spanning areas from irrigation and marketing to research and extension However this was a time of declining focus on agricultural growth and productivity by both countries and donors The cost of inadequate attention to agriculture especially in agriculture based economies came into focus with the food crisis of 2007-08 The crisis added momentum to an emerging renewal of attention and stepped up financing to agriculture and agribusiness at the World Bank and International Finance Corporation IFC as well as at several multilateral and bilateral agencies World Bank financing rose two and a half times from 2008 to 2009 though that increase in lending seems to have been accompanied by a decline in analytical work which this review finds valuable for results This evaluation seeks to provide lessons from successes and failures to help improve the development impact of the renewed attention to the sector Ratings against the World Bank's stated objectives and IFC's market based benchmarks for agriculture and agribusiness projects have been equal to or above portfolio averages in East Asia Latin America and the transition economies in Europe with notable successes over a long period in China and India But performance of WBG interventions has been well below average in Sub-Saharan Africa where IFC has had little engagement in agribusiness Inconsistent client commitment and weak capacity have limited the effectiveness of WBG support in agriculture based economies particularly in Sub-Saharan Africa and constraints on staffing and internal coordination within the WBG have also hurt outcomes Financial sustainability has been constrained by insufficient government funding and the difficulty of maintaining agricultural services and infrastructure The WBG has a unique opportunity to match the increases in the financing for agriculture with sharper focus on improving agricultural growth and productivity in agriculture based economies notably in Sub-Saharan Africa Greater effort will be needed to connect sectoral interventions and achieve synergies from public and private sector interventions to build capacity and knowledge exchange to take stock of experience in rain fed agriculture to ensure attention to financial sustainability and to cross cutting issues of gender environmental and social impacts and climate and to better integrate WBG support at the global and regional levels with that at the country level
