ENVE 873: Wastewater Treatment
Fall 2018

Assignment 2B

In this assignment you will have an opportunity to:

- a) integrate design mass balance relationships into mass balances for thickening, dewatering and anaerobic digestion processes;

b) calculate the loading rate used for dewatering digested sludge. The feed, supernatant and cake streams are provided and the following information is available for each sample stream collected. Determine the solids capture that is being achieved with this centrifuge.

Sample	Initial mass (g)	Mass after drying (g)
Feed	500	314
Centrate	1000	81
Cake	200	142

Use the following values:

$$\text{Feed} = 1000 \text{ L/hr} = 10 \text{ m}^3/\text{hr}$$

$$\text{Feed} = 10 \text{ g SS/g SS} = 10 \text{ gSS/gSS}$$

$$\text{Feed} = 2 \text{ g SS/g SS} = 2 \text{ gSS/gSS}$$

$$\text{SS} = \frac{\text{mass of solids}}{\text{mass of wet}} = \frac{\text{mass of solids}}{\text{mass of solids} + \text{mass of water}}$$

Selected Water Resources Abstracts ,1979-11 Physicochemical Treatment Processes Lawrence K. Wang, Yung-Tse Hung, Nazih K. Shammas, 2005-03-11 The past 30 years have seen the emergence of a growing desire worldwide to take positive actions to restore and protect the environment from the degrading effects of all forms of pollution air noise solid waste and water Because pollution is a direct or indirect consequence of waste the seemingly idealistic demand for zero discharge can be construed as an unrealistic demand for zero waste However as long as waste exists we can only attempt to abate the subsequent pollution by converting it to a less noxious form Three major questions usually arise when a particular type of pollution has been identified 1 How serious is the pollution 2 Is the technology to abate it available and 3 Do the costs of abatement justify the degree of abatement achieved The principal intention of the Handbook of Environmental Engineering series is to help readers formulate answers to the last two questions The traditional approach of applying tried and true solutions to specific pollution problems has been a major contributing factor to the success of environmental engineering and has accounted in large measure for the establishment of a methodology of pollution control. However, realization of the ever increasing complexity and interrelated nature of current environmental problems makes it imperative that intelligent planning of pollution abatement systems be undertaken. Planning and Urban Design Standards American Planning Association, Frederick R. Steiner, Kent Butler, 2012-09-17. The new student edition of the definitive reference on urban planning and design Planning and Urban Design Standards Student Edition is the authoritative and reliable volume designed to teach students best practices and guidelines for urban planning and design. Edited from the main volume to meet the serious student's needs, this Student Edition is packed with more than 1,400 informative illustrations and includes the latest rules of thumb for designing and evaluating any land use scheme from street plantings to new subdivisions. Students find real help understanding all the practical information on the physical aspects of planning and urban design they are required to know, including Plans and plan making, Environmental planning and management, Building types, Transportation, Utilities, Parks and open space, farming and forestry, Places and districts, Design considerations, Projections and demand analysis, Impact assessment, Mapping, Legal foundations, Growth management, preservation, conservation and reuse, Economic and real estate development. Planning and Urban Design Standards Student Edition provides essential specification and detailing information for various types of plans, environmental factors and hazards, building types, transportation planning and mapping, and GIS. In addition, expert advice guides readers on practical and graphical skills such as mapping, plan types, and transportation planning. Handbook of Downstream Processing E. Goldberg, 2012-12-06. The last two decades have seen a phenomenal growth of the field of genetic or biochemical engineering and have witnessed the development and ultimately marketing of a variety of products typically through the manipulation and growth of different types of microorganisms followed by the recovery and purification of the associated products. The engineers and biotechnologists who are involved in the full scale process design of such facilities must be familiar with the variety of unit operations and equipment and the applicable regulatory requirements. This book describes current commercial practice and will be useful to those engineers working in this field in the design, construction and operation of pharmaceutical and biotechnology plants. It will be of help to the chemical or pharmaceutical engineer who is developing a plant design and who faces issues such as: Should the process be batch or continuous or a combination of batch and continuous? How should the optimum process design be developed? Should one employ a new revolutionary separation which could be potentially difficult to validate or use accepted technology which involves less risk? Should the process be run with ingredients formulated from water for injection, deionized water or even filtered tap water? Should any of the separations be run in cold rooms or in glycol jacketed lines to minimize microbial growth where sterilization is not possible? Should the process equipment and lines be designed to be sterilized in place, cleaned in place or should every piece be broken down, cleaned and autoclaved after every turn?
