Building a New Economy D. Hugh Whittaker, 2024-01-23 Japan is attempting to build a new economy It goes by various names such as Society 5.0 sustainable capitalism and new form of capitalism It is to be constructed through digital and green transformation and a virtuous cycle of growth and distribution The effort faces strong headwinds including demographic decline and ageing Japan's external energy dependence and geopolitical turbulence and the legacies of Japan's lost decades Nonetheless since 2015 a path has been identified that steers between Big Tech market oligopoly on the one hand and an overbearing state on the other For others facing the same post neoliberal sustainability transformation challenges as Japan this public private coordinated building effort is noteworthy Building a New Economy uses an evolutionary conceptual framework of states and markets organizations and technology and institutional change It shows how the institutional coherence of the manufacturing centred postwar model broke down and was followed by the ideological and institutional dissonance of the lost decades However new institutional building blocks have been identified and partially assembled which could lead Japan towards a new model which is more open and adaptive These blocks include a reconfigured developmental state and new forms of coordination with and within the corporate sector at times encompassing civil society Importantly for a country that has favoured social stability over creative destruction and has struggled with change the path forward may require controlled disequilibrium of institutions rather than tight coherence Society 5.0 and the new form of capitalism claim to be people centred making them so will be the crucial challenge

Perdurabo, Revised and Expanded Edition Richard Kaczynski, 2010-08-10 A rigorously researched biography of the founder of modern magick as well as a study of the occult sexuality Eastern religion and more The name Aleister Crowley instantly conjures visions of diabolic ceremonies and orgiastic indulgences and while the sardonic Crowley would perhaps be the last to challenge such a view he was also much more than the Beast as this authoritative biography shows Perdurabo entitled after the magical name Crowley chose when inducted into the Hermetic Order of the Golden Dawn traces Crowley's remarkable journey from his birth as the only son of a wealthy lay preacher to his death in a boarding house as the world's foremost authority on magick. Along the way he rebels against his conservative religious upbringing, befriends famous artists, writers, and philosophers, and becomes a poet himself. He is attacked for his practice of the black arts and teaches that science and magick can work together. While seeking to spread his infamous philosophy of "Do what thou wilt shall be the whole of the Law," Crowley becomes one of the most notorious figures of his day. Based on Richard Kaczynski's twenty years of research and including previously unpublished biographical details, Perdurabo paints a memorable portrait of the man who inspired the counterculture and influenced generations of artists, punks, wiccans, and other denizens of the demimonde. Resources in Education, 1999-04

Culture in Education and Education in Culture Pernille Hviid, Mariann Märtsin, 2019-11-18 In a world where the global engagement and international dialogue intensifies, some areas of cultivated knowledge suffer from this dialogue, and this has consequences for people and communities. We propose education to be such a case. The global dialogue in education tends to be restricted to and mediated by standardized measurements. Such standards are meant to measure qualities of education and of student behavior and create the sought-for condition for normative comparability and competition. The obvious drawback is that cultural variability in local living, as well as in education, is rendered irrelevant. Are there alternatives? The book insists on maintaining the discussion about education on a global level but rather than moving towards homogenization and standardization of education, the attention is drawn towards the potential for learning from creative fits and misfits between concrete local cultures, institutional practices, and global aims and standards of education. This work brings together a group of educational and developmental researchers and scholars grappling to find culturally informed and sensitive modes of educating people and communities. Case studies and examples from four geographical contexts are being discussed: China, Brazil, Australia, and Europe. While being embedded in these local cultures, the authors share a conceptual grounding in cultural developmental theorizing and a vision for a culturally informed globalized perspective on education. As the theme of the book is learning from each other, the volume also includes commentaries from leading scholars in the field of cultural psychology and education.

Global Voices and Global Visions Betsy Gunzelmann, 2013-12-18 We are in a state of tremendous global unrest with wars, acts of terrorism, genocide, epidemics, and untold natural disasters. In some cases, students are at risk as a result of safety concerns within their schools from extremist views that discriminate against obtaining education from societal issues that increase anxiety and depression, and even in specific cases from corruption in government that prevents students from having access to schooling. It is through globally engaged education that we can learn of one another, attain academic excellence, improve international relationships, triumph over atrocities, and discover new potentials. A synergistic globally engaged education will allow for working together collaboratively, cooperatively, and innovatively while still respecting diversity and humane ideologies. Through cutting-edge interdisciplinary research from psychology, neuroscience, education leaps in the technological areas and listening closely to the global voices we can indeed ascertain understanding peace and sustainability
