- ✓ I have finally finished my homework.
- ✓ Has he tidied his room?
- ✓ We have just won our league.
- ✓ Have you written your essay yet?

Obler, Gabriele Miceli, 1990 This major reference work fills a need long recognized in neurolinguistics a source for analyzable speech transcripts from agrammatic aphasic patients that provides detailed grammatical descriptions and distributional analyses This 3 volume set is unique in that it presents narrative speech from carefully selected clinically comparable patients speakers of 14 languages and parallel narratives by normal speakers For each of the 14 languages there is a case presentation chapter analyzing and discussing the language of agrammatic patients followed by primary data which are organized as follows running text of speech by two patients interlinear morphemic translations of those texts running text of speech elicited from two normal control subjects plus interlinear translations tables and figures analyzing distributional properties of the patients speech results of comprehension tests of the patients transcriptions of patients oral reading and writing samples Neurological information is included with the case presentations and a short grammatical sketch of each language is added to make the work on all languages accessible

Michaelis,2002-01-04 This study presents a semantic framework for analysing all aspectual constructions in terms of the event state distinction and describes the grammatical expression of aspectual meaning in terms of a theory of grammatical constructions In this theory grammatical constructions like words are conventionalized form meaning pairs which are best described not only with respect to their intrinsic semantic values but also with respect to the functional oppositions in which they participate Past Tense, Present Perfect Ashish Gupta-jee, What if we perfectly manifest our imperfections Perhaps our imperfections are a perfect reflection of our perfections When we project our perfect selves onto the imperfect manifestation of others it becomes a source of conflict what if really all of us were perfect in our own way This story is about the very idea of perfection subtly manifested as fine as a golden hairline crack on porcelain Morphologie G. E. Booij,Christian Lehmann,Joachim Mugdan,2000 This series of HANDBOOKS OF LINGUISTICS AND COMMUNICATION SCIENCE is designed to illuminate a field which not only includes general linguistics and the study of linguistics as applied to specific languages but also covers those more recent areas which have developed from the increasing body of research into the manifold forms of communicative action and interaction For classic linguistics there appears to be a need for a review of the state of the art which will provide a reference base for the rapid advances in research undertaken from a variety of theoretical standpoints while in the more recent branches of communication science the handbooks will give researchers both an overview and orientation To attain these objectives the series will aim for a standard comparable to that of the leading handbooks in other disciplines and to this end will strive for comprehensiveness theoretical explicitness reliable documentation of data and findings and up to date methodology The editors both of the series and of the individual volumes and the individual contributors are committed to this aim The languages of publication are English German and French The main aim of the series is to provide an appropriate account of the state of the art in the various areas of linguistics and communication science covered by each of the various handbooks however no inflexible pre set limits will be imposed on the scope of each volume The series is open ended and can thus take account of further developments in the field This conception coupled with the necessity of allowing adequate time for each volume to be prepared with the necessary care means that there is no set time table for the publication of the whole series Each volume will be a self contained work complete in itself The order in which the handbooks are published does not imply any rank ordering but is determined by the way in which the series is organized the editor of the whole series enlist a competent editor for each individual volume Once the principal editor for a volume has been found he or she then has a completely free hand in the choice of co editors and contributors The editors plan each volume independently of the others being governed only by general formal principles The series editor only intervene where questions of delineation between individual volumes are concerned It is felt that this modus operandi is best suited to achieving the objectives of the series namely to give a competent account of the present state of knowledge and of the perception of the problems in the area covered by each volume
