The Land Of Decoration:

The Land of Decoration Grace McCleen, 2012 Judith and her father don't have much their house is full of dusty relics reminders of the mother she's never known But Judith sees the world with the clear Eyes of Faith and where others might see rubbish Judith sees possibility Bullied at school she finds solace in making a model of the Promised Land little people made from pipe cleaners a sliver of moon luminous stars and a mirror sea a world of wonder that Judith calls The Land of Decoration Perhaps she thinks if she makes it snow indoors using shaving foam and cotton wool and cellophane there will be no school on Monday Sure enough when Judith opens her curtains the next day the world beyond her window has turned white She has performed her first miracle And that's when her troubles begin The Land of Decoration Grace

McCleen, 2012-03-19 Ten year old Judith McPherson is a believer Her world is carefully constructed around her faith nightly scripture reading with her father weekly gatherings at the Meeting Hall and daily proselytizing to the lost With no TV and no books of the world to entertain her she passes time by creating The Land of Decoration a model in miniature of The Promised Land which she has made of collected discarded scraps divine treasures that she squirrels away But Judith's troubles are mounting At school Neil Lewis's relentless terrorizing has reached a feverish dangerous pitch and in town a strike threatens the factory where her father works One Sunday night terrified of the violence that awaits her in the halls on Monday Judith conjures a snowstorm in The Land of Decoration made of shaving cream cotton and cellophane The next morning the ground outside her window is a crisp dazzling white Judith can perform miracles In fact she might just be God's chosen instrument But with power comes weighty consequences and Judith must face them head on to keep her faith and her family alive With its intensely taut storytelling and gorgeous prose The Land of Decoration is a harrowing story of good and evil belonging and isolation faith and doubt and it introduces us to a classic new heroine It's a novel that gives us many incredible gifts but its most exciting is the gift of Grace McCleen a brilliant heartbreaking new voice in fiction Chambers's Encyclopædia, 1888
