ever has Translating the Monster Douglas Robinson, 2022-10-24 One of the hottest battles emerging out of the theoretical and methodological collisions between Comparative Literature and Translation Studies especially on the battleground of World Literature has to do with translatability and untranslatability Is any translation of a great work of literature not only a lamentable betrayal but an impossibility Or is translation an imperfect but invaluable tool for the transmission of works and ideas beyond language barriers Both views are defensible indeed both are arguably commonsensical What Douglas Robinson argues in Translating the Monster however is that both are gross oversimplifications of a complex situation that he calls on Jacques Derrida to characterize as the monster The Finnish novelist Robinson takes as his case study for that monstrous rethinking is Volter Kilpi 1874 1939 regarded by scholars of Finnish literature as Finland's second world class writer the first being Aleksis Kivi 1834 1872 Kilpi's modernist experiments of the 1930s especially his so called Archipelago series beginning with his masterpiece In the Alastalo Parlor 1933 were forgotten and neglected for a half century due to the extreme difficulty of his narrative style he reinvents the Finnish language to the extent that many Finns say it is like reading a foreign language and one contemporary critic called it the Mesopotamian language of a half wit That novel has been translated exactly twice into Swedish and German Translating the Monster also gives the English speaking reader an extended taste of the novel in English en route to a series of reframings of the novel as allegories of translation and world literature

Metafiction and Myth in the Novels of Peter Ackroyd Susana Onega Jaén, 1999 Providing detailed analysis of the recurrent structural and thematic traits in Peter Ackroyd's first nine novels this work sets out to show how they grow out of the tension created by two apparently contradictory tendencies These are on the one hand the metafictional tendency to blur the boundaries between story telling and history to enhance the linguistic component of writing and to underline the constructedness of the world created in a way that aligns Ackroyd with other postmodernist writers of historiographic metafiction and on the other the attempt to achieve mythical closure expressed for example in Ackroyd's fictional treatment of London as a mystic centre of power This mythical element evinces the influence of high modernists such as Ezra Pound and T S Eliot and links Ackroyd's work to transition to postmodern writers such as Lawrence Durrell Maureen Duffy Doris Lessing and John Fowles
