The Man Who Made Parks:

The Man Who Made Parks Frieda Wishinsky, 2009-01-13 The story of Olmsted who designed some of North America's most famous public spaces. When the great cities of North America were being built, little thought was given to the idea of creating green spaces. But these oases from the dirt, gravel, and noise of the crowded city streets were exactly what were needed. One of the few people to recognize this fact was Frederick Law Olmsted, North America's first landscape architect. Combining his love of nature with his admiration for the structured beauty found in the great public parks of London and Paris, Olmsted turned neglected swampy acres on the edge of New York City into one of the most acclaimed parks in the world: Central Park. But Olmsted's success was not earned overnight. He spent many years wandering from job to job, searching for the perfect career. And when he finally discovered his passion, few people were confident in his abilities. But Olmsted fought for the preservation of areas like Yosemite in the USA, and his perseverance would be rewarded; he went on to design some of the most famous public spaces in North America.

The Man who Made Parks Frieda Wishinsky, 1999 The story of the first North American landscape architect and the man behind the creation of New York City's Central Park, Montreal's Mount Royal, and the Capitol Grounds in Washington D.C.

Singapore's Park System Master Planning Raffaella Sini, 2019-04-23 This book traces the evolution of Singapore's parks system from colonial to present times. Further, it contextualizes the design and planning of parks in the general discourse on western and eastern traditions, early twentieth-century western conceptions imported during colonialism, modernism, postmodernism, and the contemporary ecological debate. Park system planning products respond to national policies and result in structural urban elements and a range of park types. Global western ideology and local issues have influenced park system planning and the physical design of individual parks over time. However, in Singapore, the eastern literature has not addressed the development of parks and urban green spaces in terms of historical perspective. The publication reveals the interrelations between visual representations and changing political ideologies. Singapore's system of public parks is shown to represent an iconography created by the state. Its set of constructed narratives elucidates on the potential social, cultural, and environmental roles of public parks. However, Singapore's park system presents a novel paradigm for expanding Asian cities characterized by evolving urban imaging strategies In framing Singapore s case study within the broader perspective of eastern applications of western planning and design practices and constructions of nation in post colonial countries the manuscript establishes the contribution of the Singaporean model of design and planning of parks to the international debate Yearbook, Park and Recreation Progress ,1938 Fauna of the National Parks of the United States George Melendez Wright,Benjamin Hunter Thompson,1935 Fauna of the National Parks of the United States George M.
