Animal Sonar Systems R. Busnel, 2013-06-29 Thirteen years have gone by since the first international meeting on Animal Sonar Systems was held in Frascati Italy in 1966 Since that time almost 900 papers have been published on its theme The first symposium was vital as it was the starting point for new research lines whose goal was to design and develop technological systems with properties approaching optimal biological systems There have been highly significant developments since then in all domains related to biological sonar systems and in their applications to the engineering field The time had therefore come for a multidisciplinary integration of the information gathered not only on the evolution of systems used in animal echolocation but on systems theory behavior and neurobiology signal to noise ratio masking signal processing and measures observed in certain species against animal sonar systems Modern electronics technology and systems theory which have been developed only since 1974 now allow designing sophisticated sonar and radar systems applying principles derived from biological systems At the time of the Frascati meeting integrated circuits and technologies exploiting computer science were not well enough developed to yield advantages now possible through use of real time analysis leading to among other things a definition of target temporal characteristics as biological sonar systems are able to do All of these new technical developments necessitate close cooperation between engineers and biologists within the framework of new experiments which have been designed particularly in the past five years Perspectives on the Marine Animal Forests of the World Sergio Rossi, Lorenzo Bramanti, 2021-02-06 Marine Animal Forests MAFs are spread all over the world Composed by suspension feeding organisms e g corals gorgonians sponges bryozoans bivalves etc MAFs constitute a vast number of marine ecosystems such as coral reefs cold water corals sponge grounds bivalve beds etc The surface covered by these systems is prominent at the scale of the oceans of the planet though poorly known In a previous book Marine Animal Forests the ecology of benthic biodiversity hotspots several aspects of the MAFs were described and discussed building the basis for a holistic approach with the aim of putting these shallow and deep sea ecosystems under a common umbrella The main target of the present book is to identify and address important topics which were not covered in the previous three volumes Bryozoans or Polychaeta for example are treated in this volume as well as hydrothermal vents ecosystems and submarine caves the chemical ecology in MAFs or the nursery effect on these ecosystems The vastity of the MAF concept opens new insights in the biology physiology biodiversity of the organisms structuring these highly biodiverse ecosystems and on the dangers threatening them such as microplastics or the role of invasive species as an impact of their trophic ecology or distribution In a fast changing world in which the complexity of MAFs is at risk we propose an in depth analysis of many aspects that may be inspirational for future research lines in marine biology and ecology The Marine Aquarium Reference Martin A.
