Trans/forming Feminisms Krista Scott-Dixon, 2006 Trans forming Feminisms is a groundbreaking anthology that challenges us to build a more inclusive transfeminist politics A must read for students academics and social and political activists interested in tackling these compelling and challenging issues      Pot Boiler Liam Naston, 2005-07-08 The book examines and challenges some of the contemporary values and morality of love by chronicalling the love life of an ordinary young man from its uncertain roots through many experiences with women and other men towards happiness and understanding In a light hearted manner it reviews love as it is actually experienced and rarely recorded by a man in his body mind and spirit The man in the story is ordinary because he believes that even though he has seen and experienced much magic it is nothing beyond that which any other man can or will experience during the course of his life      Self-made Men Henry Rubin, 2003 In Self Made Men Henry Rubin explores the production of male identities in the lives of twenty two FTM transsexuals people who have changed their sex from female to male The author relates the compelling personal narratives of his subjects to the historical emergence of FTM as an identity category In the interviews that form the heart of the book the FTMs speak about their struggles to define themselves and their diverse experiences from the pressures of gender conformity in adolescence to being mistaken for butch lesbians from hormone treatments and surgeries to relationships with families partners and acquaintances Their stories of feeling betrayed by their bodies and of undergoing a second puberty are vivid and thought provoking Throughout the interviews the subjects claims to having core male identities are remarkably consistent and thus challenge anti essentialist assumptions in current theories of gender embodiment and identity Rubin uses two key methods to analyze and interpret his findings Adapting Foucault s notions of genealogy he highlights the social construction of gender categories and identities His account of the history of endocrinology and medical technologies for transforming bodies demonstrates that the family resemblance between transsexuals and intersexuals was a necessary postulate for medical intervention into the lives of the emerging FTMs The book also explores the historical emergence of the category of FTM transsexual as distinguished from the category of lesbian woman and the resultant border disputes over identity between the two groups Rubin complements this approach with phenomenological concepts that stress the importance of lived experience and the individual's capacity for knowledge and action An important contribution to several fields including sociology of the body gender and masculinity human development and the history of science Self Made Me will be of interest to anyone who has seriously pondered what it means to be a man and how men become men

Masculinities without Men? Jean Bobby Noble, 2010-10-01 Conventional ideas about gender and sexuality dictate that people born with male bodies naturally possess both a man's identity and a man's right to authority Recent scholarship in the field of gender studies however exposes the complex political technologies that construct gender as a supposedly unchanging biological essence with self-evident links to physicality identity and power In Masculinities without Men Jean Bobby Noble explores how the construction of gender was thrown into crisis during the twentieth century resulting in a permanent rupture in the sex gender system and how masculinity became an unstable category altered across time region social class and ethnicity This groundbreaking study maps historical similarities in fictional cultural and representational practices between the periods of modernism and postmodernism Noble examines nineteenth century sexology drama and trial transcripts and late twentieth century counter cultural fiction popular film and documentaries and theoretical texts Among the works analyzed closely are texts that have been the focus of lesbian queer and feminist theory Radclyffe Hall's The Well of Loneliness Leslie Feinberg's Stone Butch Blues and the film Boys Don't Cry. These, as Noble illustrates, make use of similar types of narrative structures and thematic techniques to articulate female masculinity. Also included is an exploration of Rose Tremain's Sacred Country, which has never before been studied within this context. Through a critical examination of these texts, Noble demonstrates that trans-gendered and trans-sexual masculinity began to emerge as a unique category in late twentieth-century fiction, distinct from lesbian or female masculinity. Of interest to scholars and students with an interest in sexuality and gender studies, Masculinities without Men also makes a vital contribution to literary criticism as well as to cultural and film studies.

The Transgender Studies Reader Susan Stryker, Stephen Whittle, 2013-10-18
Transgender studies is the latest area of academic inquiry to grow out of the exciting nexus of queer theory, feminist studies, and the history of sexuality. Because transpeople challenge our most fundamental assumptions about the relationship between bodies, desire, and identity, the field is both fascinating and contentious. The Transgender Studies Reader puts between two covers fifty influential texts with new introductions by the editors that taken together document the evolution of transgender studies in the English-speaking world. By bringing together the voices and experience of transgender individuals, doctors, psychologists, and academically based theorists, this volume will be a foundational text for the transgender community, transgender studies, and related queer theory.
