Readers in Children's Literature Evelyn Arizpe,Vivienne Smith,2015-10-05 We are fascinated by text and we are fascinated by reading Is this because we are in a time of textual change Given that young people always seem to be in the vanguard of technological change questions about what and how they read are the subject of intense debate Children as Readers in Children's Literature explores these questions by looking at the literature that is written for children and young people to see what it tells us about them as readers The contributors to this book are a group of distinguished children's literature scholars literacy and media specialists who contemplate the multiple images of children as readers and how they reflect the power and purpose of texts and literacy Contributors to this wide ranging text consider How books shape the readers we become Cognitive and affective responses to representation of books and reading The relationship between love stories and reading as a cultural activity Reading as Protection and Enlightenment Picturebooks as stage sets for acts of reading Readers perceptions of a writer This portrayal of books and reading also reveals adults beliefs about childhood and literacy and how they are changing It is a theme of crucial significance in the shaping of future generations of readers given these beliefs influence not only ideas about the teaching of literature but also about the role of digital technologies This text is a must read for any individual interested in the importance of keeping literature alive through reading     The Spectator ,1897     Discovering John John Ashton,2020-05-11 This collection of posthumously published essays by John Ashton manifests his ongoing exegetical work at the end of his life The essays explore themes arising from his groundbreaking study Understanding the Fourth Gospel which John Ashton intended to be preceded by an intellectual autobiography contextualizing this study both in the wider context of biblical scholarship and the particularities of his life This in itself is an unusual contribution and it sheds much light not only on the current state of Johannine studies but also on the situation of those involved with both church and academy in the closing decades of the twentieth century     Canadian Books in Print.
