Intelligence Analysis in Theater Joint Intelligence Centers Robert D. Folker,2000 A growing number of JMIC students have began to incorporate replicable research design into their theses This distillation of Master Sergeant Folker s theses shows how fruitful this approach can be By taking advantage of on site research funds available from the College he managed in brief visits to four Unified Command Joint Intelligence Centers to carry out a controlled experiment to measure the impact of analyst familiarity with and use of one structured analytic technique hypothesis testing His findings if corroborated by follow on studies could have a substantial impact on Intelligence Community analytical practices and even some influence on how senior policy officials react to analytical products Managers of analytical personnel might also note that structured methods would appear from this study of non specialized joint intelligence center analysts to be useful to specialized analysts who may be required to move beyond their areas of deep expertise to cover new or unfamiliar assignments

The Manager's Coaching Toolkit David Allamby, 2006 Managers are now busier than ever They do not have time to read books or attend training courses even though the need to develop coaching skills has never been higher 10% of the management books sold in the UK last year were to help managers coach There has not yet been a coaching book that is highly practical and immediately applicable on the job and which covers a range of common managerial situations Almost all require a major investment of time before results are seen None provide extensive sample dialogues for the reader to quickly grasp how the skills will sound in practice Any manager will be able to start coaching within 15 minutes of opening this book I believe a coaching book should be highly pragmatic This book will offer the manager a number of models that can be quickly and easily applied to several common work and employee situations such as performance reviews setting direction and goals learning from mistakes and giving feedback The manager will be able to quickly acquire the relevant knowledge for a given situation with a suitable coaching model and put this into practice with the minimum of reading time The style is casual and entertaining Unlike other titles this book is based upon situations that every manager or leader will regularly encounter Each chapter will cover a common scenario e.g. giving feedback and will offer a useful tool to guide the manager through the discussion
