Time Series in Psychology R. A.M. Gregson, 2014-05-22 First published in 1983 Psychological data are segments of life histories as such they are ordered sequences of observations and by definition time series Yet they are often anything but well behaved what regularities and invariances they have are buried from all but the most persistent investigator The most common methods of representing quantitative results in psychology are frozen outside time thus they deliberately average out much of the sequential structure that holds any sparse clues to the nature of processes within the organism This review whose simple aim is to bring together in an illuminating juxtaposition on basic results in both time series analysis and in experimental psychology thus cuts across traditions within psychology

Theories from a Structuralist Point of View Hans Westmeyer, 2012-12-06 Metatheoretical and more generally methodological analyses of psychological problems and theories have a long tradition however their impact on scientific practice especially on the clarification and testing of existing psychological theories and the formulation of new ones has so far been less than spectacular The increased interest in theoretical psychology visible during the past ten or twenty years is associated with the hope that a change of this situation will gradually be effected Thus in their preface to the proceedings of the founding conference of The International Society for Theoretical Psychology Baker et al 1987 pp Vf 1 take up 2 once more the objectives of a theoretical psychology formulated by Koch already in 1951 a Education in the methodology and logic of science b Analysis of methodological or foundational problems that are more or less unique to psychology c Internal systematization of suggestive but formally defective theoretical formulations d Intertranslation and differential analysis of conflicting theoretical formulations e Construction of new theory Reflecting on possible reasons for the relative inefficacy so far of methodological and metatheoretical analyses in psychology it seems to me that the following two have been of prime importance 1 Many of the existing analyses are at best tenuously connected to concrete existing psychological theories i e they deal with their subject matter in a too abstract detached way This detracts from the persuasive power which their results might otherwise have and impedes the realization of these results within scientific practice Human Motivation David C. McClelland, 1988-01-29 Human Motivation originally published in 1987 offers a broad overview of theory and research from the perspective of a distinguished psychologist whose creative empirical studies of human motives span forty years David McClelland describes methods for measuring motives the development of motives out of natural incentives and the relationship of motives to emotions to values and to performance under a variety of conditions He examines four major motive systems achievement power affiliation and avoidance reviewing and evaluating research on how these motive systems affect behaviour Scientific understanding of motives and their interaction he argues contributes to understanding of such diverse and important phenomena as the rise and fall of civilisations the underlying causes of war the rate of economic development the nature of leadership the reasons for authoritarian or democratic governing styles the determinants of success in management and the factors responsible for health and illness Students and instructors alike will find this book an exciting and readable presentation of the psychology of human motivation The Routledge International Handbook of Health Psychology Robbert Sanderman, Karen Morgan, 2025-01-29 This state of the art handbook provides authoritative up to date coverage of health psychology topics offering an excellent in depth view of the field Leading experts provide essential insights into the discipline of health psychology its roots future directions and the networks and organisations involved Structured into eight parts the book starts with defining health psychology including an important historical overview Subsequent sections examine theories and methodology health behaviour interpersonal relations and health chronic disease and interventions The concluding sections tackle the important areas of global health psychology and the future of Health

Psychology The editors and auditors include leading experts in the field as well as early career researchers from over 20 countries across the world Global representation was a key goal in selecting authors While familiar areas receive ample attention this book strives to put the field of health psychology in context As well as examining history it book spotlights global issues and explicitly mentions future developments and opportunities The role of health psychology in the COVID 19 pandemic is considered and there is discussion more broadly on how health psychology can contribute to addressing societal challenges including how to move forward sharing knowledge more firmly with policymakers This is an essential resource for scholars PhD students and research master students specialising in the field of health psychology ECKM 2019 20th European Conference on Knowledge Management 2 VOLS Dr. Eduardo Tomé, 2019-09-05 National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1971 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70

The Paradox of Violence in Venezuela David Smilde, Verónica Zubillaga, Rebecca Hanson, 2023-05-30 Crime and violence soared in twenty first century Venezuela even as poverty and inequality decreased contradicting the conventional wisdom that these are the underlying causes of violence The Paradox of Violence in Venezuela explains the rise of violence under both Hugo Ch vez and Nicol s Maduro leftist presidents who made considerable investment in social programs and political inclusion Contributors argue that violence arose not from the frustration of inequality or the needs created by poverty but rather from the interrelated factors of a particular type of revolutionary governance extraordinary oil revenues a reliance on militarized policing and the persistence of concentrated disadvantage These factors led to dramatic but unequal economic growth massive institutional and social change and dysfunctional criminal justice policies that destabilized illicit markets and social networks leading to an increase in violent conflict resolution The Paradox of Violence in Venezuela reorients thinking about violence and its relationship to poverty inequality and the state

Knowledge Beyond Colour Lines Monwabisi K. Ralarala, Salochana Lorraine Hassan, Rajani Naidoo, 2021-05-25 Knowledge remains timely in education The need for academics to contemplate its relevance worth use and everything in between deems a continuous intellectual project rather than a conundrum to be solved This book takes the South African context by the horns as it challenges the often dormant and traditionalist ways in which higher education spaces see knowledge Through original research and the voices of academics and students this book argues for repurposing knowledge generation knowledge sharing and critical pedagogy so that more inclusive teaching and learning environments can be both imagined and sustained The contentious tensionalities that this creates for LoLT and SoTL in particular are unlocked so as to trouble the South African higher education landscape with the intent to proffer alternative pathways for a knowledge beyond colour lines Prof Shan Simmonds PhD NWU This edited volume bristles with fresh scholarly approaches and insights of an emergent generation of engaged scholars grappling with the issues and problems of higher education in South Africa The issues dealt with here are varied and encompassing They are treated with intellectual delicacy and probing sensitivity articulacy informed data and bold conclusions They serve well Prof Kwesi Kwaa Prah Emeritus Professor of Sociology University of the Western Cape Founder of the Centre for Advanced Studies of African Society
