

What Was the Driving Force Behind European Imperialism in Africa?

For the 300 years between 1500 and 1800, European nations traded for slaves, gold, and ivory along the west coast of Africa, but they did not go deeply into the continent. In the 1800s this changed as European explorers pushed their way into the interiors of western and central Africa. By the 1880s Africa was under full assault as European nations competed with one another for control for the continent. This Mini-Q takes a look at this quest for colonies and asks what was the primary driving force behind it.

The Sociology of War and Violence Siniša Malešević, 2010-06-10 War is a highly complex and dynamic form of social conflict This book demonstrates the importance of using sociological tools to understand the changing character of war and organised violence The author offers an original analysis of the historical and contemporary impact that coercion and warfare have on the transformation of social life and vice versa Although war and violence were decisive components in the formation of modernity most analyses tend to shy away from the sociological study of the gory origins of contemporary social life In contrast this book brings the study of organised violence to the fore by providing a wide ranging sociological analysis that links classical and contemporary theories with specific historical and geographical contexts Topics covered include violence before modernity warfare in the modern age nationalism and war propaganda battlefield solidarity war and social stratification gender and organised violence and the new wars debate
