BMW E21 was born in 1975 as a replacement to the successful model 2002 and stayed in production for eight years until 1983, then the BMW E30 was introduced. Main designers of E21 are Paul Bracq and Wilhelm Hofmeister who did a great job in designing this compact executive car with a sporty feel. They also invented a unique cockpit design, with the center console angled towards the driver. This kind of interior design – "convenient for driver" – was used by BMW for many years after in different models. The E21 was described as "joy to drive", although drivers who experienced the BMW 2002ti were still complaining about lack of power. Since E21 was an entry level BMW, the true car enthusiasts had to look for bigger and more powerful models such as E24 6 series or try to get one of the rare cars tuned by Hartege or Alpina, who offered E21 equipped with M30 engines and reaching over 150 hp.
