QUESTION 3

- 3.1 Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Peat lands are special wetlands that play a very important role in ecology. A peat land, of approximately 6 000 years old, near Mafeking is almost destroyed because of excessive extraction of water from the nearby Molopo river. The water is extracted for human consumption.

Peat lands like the one near Mafeking is exceptional and play an important role in storing water as well as preventing climate changes.

Dr Phil-Louis Grundling said that carbon that is 'held' or 'stored' by peat lands combats climate change because it decreases the amount of carbon in the atmosphere.

Peat lands trap about one third of the world's carbon. Approximately 50% of wetlands worldwide are peat lands. However in South Africa about 10% of the wetlands are peat lands.

Grundling explained that peat lands can hold about 1 000 times its own mass in water. This replenishes the water table and is the source that keeps streams flowing. The "sponge effect" of the peat also makes it possible to store water that is then released during dry seasons.

Dr Grundling said that it might be too late to restore the peat land near Mafeking but it might be possible to restore some parts of it if more water is supplied to this peat land.

The result of this destruction is depletion of the water table. The habitat of numerous fish and frog species that lived in this peat land was also destroyed.

From: Beeld: 24 September 2016.

- 3.1.1 Give TWO other reasons (not mentioned in the passage) that can lead to the destruction of wetlands. (2)
- 3.1.2 Discuss reasons from the passage regarding the importance of these specific wetlands for the environment. (4)
- 3.1.3 Suggest a way in which this peat land near Mafeking can be restored. (2)

Paper 2 Of Life Sciences Of 13 November 2014:

In Their Place Stephen Crossley, 2017-08-20 This book critiques how impoverished communities are represented by politicians the media academics and policy makers and how our understanding of these neighbourhoods is often misleadingly shaped by these stories The alleged behavioural failings of poor people have attracted a great deal of academic and political scrutiny Spatial inequalities are also well documented and poor neighbourhoods have been extensively researched However other spaces have been re imagined in different ways by politicians academics journalists and social reformers These imagined geographies include exoticised slums cities being reclaimed by nature the street and domestic spaces like the kitchen or even the bedroom In Their Place highlights how these spaces are represented and how these representations are deployed manipulating political and media discourses around the individuals and communities who live there These distortions are often used to keep people in their place by making sure everyone knows where the poor belong This book will reorient those interested in human geography away from deprived neighbourhoods and back to the foundational spaces where political decisions and poverty are made in Britain today AIIMS Annual Report All-India Institute of Medical Sciences, 2015 Pharmaceutical Industry and Public Policy in Post-reform India Reji K. Joseph, 2015-07-24 This book examines the impact of economic reforms in India on the pharmaceutical industry and access to medicines It traces the changing production and trade pattern of the industry research and development R D preferences and strategies of Indian pharmaceutical firms patent system alongside pricing policy measures and their shortcomings It also analyses the public health financing system in India driven largely by out of pocket expenditure about 60 per cent and characterised by very high share of medicines in total health expenditure A masterful insight into a topical area the work will be indispensable to those working on pharmaceutical industry and public policy It will be of interest to researchers scholars students and policy makers of economics industrial policy public policy intellectual property rights and health financing Recent Advances in $\gamma\delta$ T Cell Biology: New Ligands, New Functions, and New Translational Perspectives Dieter Kabelitz, Julie Dechanet-Merville, 2016-02-16 Gamma delta T cells are a small subset of T lymphocytes in the peripheral circulation but constitute a major T cell population at other anatomical localizations such as the epithelial tissues In contrast to conventional T cells the available number of germline genes coding for T cell receptor TCR variable elements of T cells is very small Moreover there is a preferential localization of T cells expressing given Vgamma and Vdelta genes in certain tissues In humans T cells expressing the Vg9Vd2 encoded TCR account for anywhere between 50 and 95% of peripheral blood T cells whereas cells expressing non Vd2 genes dominate in mucosal tissues In mice there is an ordered appearance of T cell waves during embryonic development resulting in preferential localization of T cells expressing distinct VgammaVdelta genes in the skin the reproductive organs or gut epithelia The major function of T cells resides in local immunosurveillance and immune defense against infection and malignancy This is supported by the identification of ligands that are selectively recognized by the TCR As an example human Vgamma9Vdelta2 T cells recognize phosphorylated metabolites phosphoantigens that are secreted by many pathogens but can also be overproduced by tumor cells providing a basis for a role of these T cells in both anti infective and anti tumor immunity Similarly the recognition of endothelial protein C receptor by human non Vdelta2 T cells has recently been identified to provide a link for the role for such T cells in immunity against epithelial tumor cells and cytomegalovirus infected endothelial cells In addition to classical functions such as cytokine production and cytotoxicity recent studies suggest that subsets of T cells can exert additional functions such as regulatory activity and quite surprisingly professional antigen presenting capacity It is currently not well known how this tremendous extent of functional plasticity is regulated and what is the extent of TCR ligand diversity Due to their non MHC restricted recognition of unusual stress associated ligands T cells have raised great interest as to their potential translational application in cell based immunotherapy Topics of this Research Focus include Molecular insights into the activation and differentiation requirements of T cells role of pyrophosphates and butyrophilin molecules for the activation of human T cells role of T cells in tumor immunity and in other infectious and non infectious diseases and many others We are most grateful to all colleagues who agreed to write a manuscript Thanks to their contributions this E book presents an up to date overview on many facets of the still exciting T cells Dieter Kabelitz Julie D chanet Merville

Norm Contestation Betsy Jose, 2017-12-02 This Brief uses the theory of norm contestation as a model for understanding variation in norm related behavior in international relations While most typical approaches to understanding norms view norms as stable structures and actor responses to them as unquestioned in a global political climate where departures from expected behavior may occur a more nuanced model is needed By using a norm contestation framework that highlights norm fluidity and actor agency this book expands the discussion providing insight into divergent interpretations of norm violation and compliance and the dynamic nature of norms The first two chapters introduce the norm contestation model explain how it contributes to the literature on norm violations and discuss the reasons for the cases discussed Chapters Three and Four provide detailed case studies of the mechanisms of norm contestation as they apply to the civilian immunity and non intervention norms Chapter Five concludes by reconnecting the norm contestation model to the case studies and describing how it can be applied to norms other than those regulating armed conflict It also discusses policy implications and avenues for future research As such this book will appeal to students and researchers working broadly on issues related to international relations theory armed conflict security studies humanitarianism human rights international law and global governance It will also be of interest to policy makers and practitioners interested in influencing the normative behavior of actors in diverse arenas

The Routledge Handbook of the Political Economy of Science David Tyfield, Rebecca Lave, Samuel Randalls, Charles Thorpe, 2017-04-28 The political economy of research and innovation R I is one of the central issues of the early twenty first century Science and innovation are increasingly tasked with driving and reshaping a troubled global economy while also tackling multiple overlapping global challenges such as climate change or food security global pandemics or energy security But responding to these demands is made more complicated because R I themselves are changing Today new global patterns of R I are transforming the very structures institutions and processes of science and innovation and with it their claims about desirable futures Our understanding of R I needs to change accordingly Responding to this new urgency and uncertainty this handbook presents a pioneering selection of the growing body of literature that has emerged in recent years at the intersection of science and technology studies and political economy The central task for this research has been to expose important but consequential misconceptions about the political economy of R I and to build more insightful approaches This volume therefore explores the complex interrelations between R I both in general and in specific fields and political economies across a number of key dimensions from health to environment and universities to the military The Routledge Handbook of the Political Economy of Science offers a unique collection of texts across a range of issues in this burgeoning and important field from a global selection of top scholars The handbook is essential reading for students interested in the political economy of science technology and innovation It also presents succinct and insightful summaries of the state of the art for more advanced scholars

The Reproductive Body at Work Verena Namberger, 2019-04-11 The transnational industry surrounding assisted reproductive technology and regenerative medicine is based on the unacknowledged labour of gamete providers surrogates and research subjects and benefits from low labour costs in enabling sectors such as logistics and transport This finding calls for a comprehensive analysis of how the contemporary intersection of neoliberal capitalism and the life sciences in short the bioeconomy capitalises on the body and its re productive capacities The Reproductive Body at Work uptakes this challenge as it explores the relations between value production labour and the body in one particular realm of the global bioeconomy the South African bioeconomy of egg donation It highlights different forms and dimensions of unacknowledged or precarious human labour that are constitutive for the procurement brokering and circulation of oocytes as valuable resources The analysis illustrates that the respective organisation of value and labour renegotiate what the reproductive body can do which status and roles it is ascribed which cultural and economic values it signifies and how it is experienced and enacted within a matrix of intersectional power relations A theoretically profound contribution to the interdisciplinary debate on New materialism The Reproductive Body at Work will appeal to students and researchers interested in fields such as gender studies medical anthropology cultural studies sociology political economy and science and technology studies

Nothing But Nets Kirsten Moore-Sheeley, 2023-12-05 How insecticide treated bed nets became a staple of global public health initiatives and reshaped health practices in Africa and beyond Distributed to millions of people annually across Africa and the global south insecticide treated bed nets have become a cornerstone of malaria control and twenty first century global health initiatives Despite their seemingly obvious public health utility however these chemically infused nets and their rise to prominence were anything but inevitable In Nothing But Nets Kirsten Moore Sheeley untangles the complicated history of insecticide treated nets as it unfolded transnationally and in Kenya specifically a key site of insecticide treated net research to reveal how the development of this intervention was deeply enmeshed with the emergence of the contemporary global health enterprise While public health workers initially conceived of nets as a stopgap measure that could be tailored to impoverished rural health systems in the early 1980s nets became standardized market goods with the potential to save lives and promote economic development globally This shift attracted donor resources for malaria control amid the rise of neoliberal regimes in international development but it also perpetuated a paradigm of fighting malaria and poverty at the level of individual consumers Africans experiences with insecticide treated nets illustrate the limitations of this paradigm and provide a warning for the precariousness of malaria control efforts today Drawing on archival published and oral historical evidence from three continents Moore Sheeley reveals the important role Africans have played in shaping global health science and technology In placing both insecticide treated nets and Africa at the center of global health history this book sheds new light on how and why commodity based health interventions have become so entrenched as solutions to global disease control as well as the challenges these interventions pose for at risk populations
