

3. Guide to residential development

Brisbane City Plan 2014 (City Plan) has been developed by Brisbane City Council in consultation with the community to support a simple, fast and clear development assessment process. The plan guides how land in Brisbane can be used and developed to support population growth, while protecting our city's enviable way of life.

Brisbane City Plan 2014 replaces Brisbane City Plan 2000.

This guide provides an overview of common types of residential development, where they can be located and how they are assessed. For more information about dwelling houses refer to the Guide to the development of dwelling houses on Council's website.

Types of residential development

The Queensland Planning Provisions (QPP) include standard definitions for a variety of residential development forms that have been incorporated into the definitions in Schedule 1 of the City Plan. The following are some of the common types of residential development in Brisbane.

- Dwelling house: A single dwelling on its own lot. A dwelling house may share a common wall with an adjacent building and can also include a secondary dwelling (granny flat).
- Dual occupancy: Two houses on one lot; they may be attached or separated.
- Multiple dwelling: Three or more dwellings on one lot. This includes townhouses, villas and apartments.
- Rooming accommodation: A dwelling that accommodates more than one household, such as student accommodation or a boarding house.
- Short-term accommodation: Temporary accommodation for tourists or travellers such as a motel, backpackers or serviced apartments.

Character residential zone

The CR1 Character zone precinct is predominantly intended for detached character dwelling houses, secondary dwellings and home-based businesses. Existing dwellings built in 1946 or before are to be retained, and extensions or renovations should maintain the original parts of the dwelling. New dwellings are to be designed to complement Brisbane's traditional character.

Under Brisbane City Plan 2000 the CR1 Character zone precinct was predominantly land in the Low density residential area classification within the Demolition control precinct.

In the CR2 Infill housing zone precinct, existing dwellings built in 1946 or before are to be retained, and any extensions or renovations must maintain the original parts of the dwelling. New multiple dwellings of up to two storeys can be developed between or behind character houses.

Consistent with Brisbane City Plan 2000, new development must be compatible in form, scale, materials and detailing to complement Brisbane's traditional character.

The CR2 Infill housing zone precinct was predominantly land that was in the Character residential area classification under Brisbane City Plan 2000.

A Guide to Impact Fees and Housing

Affordability Arthur C. Nelson, Liza K. Bowles, Julian C. Juergensmeyer, James C. Nicholas, 2012-06-22 Impact fees are one time charges that are applied to new residential developments by local governments that are seeking funds to pay for the construction or expansion of public facilities such as water and sewer systems schools libraries and parks and recreation facilities In the face of taxpayer revolts against increases in property taxes impact fees are used increasingly by local governments throughout the U S to finance construction or improvement of their infrastructure Recent estimates suggest that 60 percent of all American cities with over 25 000 residents use some form of impact fees In California it is estimated that 90 percent of such cities impose impact fees For more than thirty years impact fees have been calculated based on proportionate share of the cost of the infrastructure improvements that are to be funded by the fees However neither laws nor courts have ensured that fees charged to new homes are themselves proportionate For example the impact fee may be the same for every home in a new development even when homes vary widely in size and selling price Data show however that smaller and less costly homes have fewer people living in them and thus less impact on facilities than larger homes This use of a flat impact fee for all residential units disproportionately affects lower income residents The purpose of this guidebook is to help practitioners design impact fees that are equitable It demonstrates exactly how a fair impact fee program can be designed and implemented In addition it includes information on the history of impact fees discusses alternatives to impact fees and summarizes state legislation that can influence the design of local fee programs Case studies provide useful illustrations of successful programs This book should be the first place that planning professionals public officials land use lawyers developers homebuilders and citizen activists turn for help in crafting or recrafting proportionate share impact fee programs
