| S/N | CORRECT ANSWER | EXPLANATION |
|-----|----------------|--|
| 1 | B | REMEMBER Radiation refers to the emission or transmission of energy in the form of waves or particles through space or a medium. This energy can take various forms, including electromagnetic waves (such as light, radio waves, and X-rays) or subatomic particles (such as alpha particles, beta particles, and neutrons). EXPLANATION The instrument used in detecting the presence of radiation is Geiger-Muller counter. A Geiger-Muller counter is an instrument specifically designed to detect the presence of ionizing radiation, such as alpha, beta, and gamma radiation. It works based on the ionization effect produced by radiation when it interacts with matter. ANSWER: B |
| 2 | D | REMEMBER The linear shape of a molecule refers to the arrangement of its atoms in a straight line, with a bond angle of 180 degrees between them. In the case of carbon dioxide (CO₂), it consists of one carbon (C) atom bonded to two oxygen (O) atoms. EXPLANATION Here's an EXPLANATION of why CO₂ has a linear shape: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> Carbon Atom (C): The carbon atom at the centre of the CO₂ molecule forms two sigma (σ) bonds with the two oxygen atoms. These sigma bonds result from the sharing of electrons between the carbon and oxygen atoms. Oxygen Atoms (O): Each oxygen atom forms a sigma bond with the central carbon atom. This means that each oxygen atom shares two pairs of electrons with the carbon atom. Symmetry: Due to the arrangement of the atoms and the double bonds formed between carbon and oxygen, the CO₂ molecule achieves a linear geometry. Both oxygen atoms are on opposite sides of the carbon atom, and the molecule forms a straight line. Bond Angle: The bond angle between the carbon-oxygen-carbon atoms in CO₂ is approximately 180 degrees, which is characteristic of a linear molecular geometry. So, in summary, the CO₂ molecule is linear because of the arrangement of its |

Charles, James D. Slotta, Nathaniel Lasry, 2019-07-11 This book represents the emerging efforts of a growing international network of researchers and practitioners to promote the development and uptake of evidence based pedagogies in higher education at something a level approaching large scale impact By offering a communication venue that attracts and enhances much needed partnerships among practitioners and researchers in pedagogical innovation we aim to change the conversation and focus on how we work and learn together i e extending the implementation and knowledge of co design methods In this first edition of our Research Topic on Active Learning we highlight two of the three types of publications we wish to promote First are studies aimed at understanding the pedagogical designs developed by practitioners in their own practices by bringing to bear the theoretical lenses developed and tested in the education research community These types of studies constitute the practice pull that we see as a necessary counterbalance to knowledge push in a more productive pedagogical innovation ecosystem based on research practitioner partnerships Second are studies empirically examining the implementations of evidence based designs in naturalistic settings and under naturalistic conditions Interestingly the teams conducting these studies are already exemplars of partnerships between researchers and practitioners who are uniquely positioned as in between straddling the two worlds As a result these publications represent both the rigours of research and the pragmatism of reflective practice In forthcoming editions we will add to this collection a third type of publication design profiles These will present practitioner developed pedagogical designs at varying levels of abstraction to be held to scrutiny amongst practitioners instructional designers and researchers alike We hope by bringing these types of studies together in an open access format that we may contribute to the development of new forms of practitioner researcher interactions that promote co design in pedagogical innovation
