Music Education in Present-Day Society

War, Poverty, and Disease are major problems society faces every day. These problems in the world are everyday concerns, real, and under constant debate. Despite constant reminders of these problems still no tourniquet has been found to cure these insufferable problems. These problems are huge and way too hefty for anyone person to take on, and yet individuals constantly complain and remind the world of these issues, but no one stands up for other concerns of a "lesser" degree. Although not as pressing as war, poverty or disease; the lack of music education in today's society is alarming and an issue that should be solved.

Everyone is affected by music in some way, but teaching children how to play instruments creates a long lasting effect on children in many ways. Former Arkansas Governor Mike Huckabee comments on music education and says, "Nothing could be stupider than removing the ability for the left and right brains to function. Ask a CEO what they are looking for in an employee and they say they need people who understand teamwork, people who are disciplined, and people who understand the big picture. You know what they need? They need musicians" ("The Benefits of the Study of Music," 1). This bold statement from someone of high standing shows the importance of music in children today. Budget cuts are being made and the first thing to go in public schools is funding for the arts, but music is so necessary to education. Music focuses on several things at once and, as Mike Huckabee says, uses both the right and left side of the brain. When playing music one has to read what is essentially a foreign language on a page, interpret it, continuously count and keep rhythm, listen to the surroundings and learn to play with others, and focus on the technique that comes with each instrument. A study published in the Psychology of Music journal explains how music helps improve reading skills, and

Resources for Student Assessment Peggy Kelly, M. G. Kelly, Jon Haber, 2006 Detailed guidelines for creating and choosing reliable tests of technology literacy for various grades as well as case studies and best practices at the site district and state levels School Library Journal Resources in Education, 2001 Rethinking Racism Jennifer S. Trainor, 2008-11-04 In Rethinking Racism Emotion Persuasion and Literacy Education in an All White High School Jennifer Seibel Trainor proposes a new understanding of the roots of racism one that is based on attention to the role of emotion and the dynamics of persuasion This one year ethnographic study argues against previous assumptions about racism demonstrating instead how rhetoric and emotion as well as the processes and culture of schools are involved in the formation of racist beliefs Telling the story of a year spent in an all white high school Trainor suggests that contrary to prevailing opinion racism often does not stem from ignorance a lack of exposure to other cultures or the desire to protect white privilege Rather the causes of racism are frequently found in the realms of emotion and language as opposed to rational calculations of privilege or political ideologies Trainor maintains that racist assertions often originate not from prejudiced attitudes or beliefs but from metaphorical connections between racist ideas and nonracist values These values are reinforced even promoted by schooling via emotioned rules in place in classrooms in tacit unexamined lessons rituals and practices that exert a powerful though largely unacknowledged persuasive force on student feelings and beliefs about race Through in depth analysis of established anti racist pedagogies student behavior and racial discourses Trainor illustrates the manner in which racist ideas are subtly upheld through social and literacy education in the classroom and are thus embedded in the infrastructures of schools themselves It is the emotional and rhetorical framework of the classroom that lends racism its compelling power in the minds of students even as teachers endeavor to address the issue of cultural discrimination This effort is continually hindered by an incomplete understanding of the function of emotions in relation to antiracist persuasion and cannot be remedied until the root of the problem is addressed Rethinking Racism calls for a fresh approach to understanding racism and its causes offering crucial insight into the formative role of schooling in the perpetuation of discriminatory beliefs In addition this highly readable narrative draws from white students own stories about the meanings of race in their learning and their lives It thus provides new ways of thinking about how researchers and teachers represent whiteness Blending narrative with more traditional forms of ethnographic analysis Rethinking Racism uncovers the ways in which constructions of racism originate in literacy research and in our classrooms and how these constructions themselves can limit the rhetorical positions students enact Research in Education, 1974 Trends in Teaching

Experimentation in the Life Sciences Nancy J. Pelaez, Stephanie M. Gardner, Trevor R. Anderson, 2022-05-11 This book is a guide for educators on how to develop and evaluate evidence based strategies for teaching biological experimentation to thereby improve existing and develop new curricula It unveils the flawed assumptions made at the classroom department and institutional level about what students are learning and what help they might need to develop competence in biological experimentation Specific case studies illustrate a comprehensive list of key scientific competencies that unpack what it means to be a competent experimental life scientist It includes explicit evidence based guidelines for educators regarding the teaching learning and assessment of biological research competencies The book also provides practical teacher guides and exemplars of assignments and assessments It contains a complete analysis of the variety of tools developed thus far to assess learning in this domain This book contributes to the growth of public understanding of biological issues including scientific literacy and the crucial importance of evidence based decision making around public policy It will be beneficial to life science instructors biology education researchers and science administrators who aim to improve teaching in life science departments Chapters 6 12 14 and 22 are available open access under a Creative Commons Attribution 4 0 International License via link springer.com RSA Research Information System Abstracts United States.
