cellular processes, including homeostasis and transport of molecules.

Homeostasis: Process by which organisms keep internal conditions relatively stable regardless of changes in the external environment. It is important because the processes that keep the cell alive only takes place under certain internal conditions.

• The Cell (plasma) Membrane determines what goes in and out of a cell to help maintain homeostasis.

Cells transport materials across the cell membrane in many different ways. The cell membrane is selectively permeable.

Some molecules must be allowed in through a special type of transport protein. Other smaller molecules like oxygen and carbon dioxide can squeeze through the lipid bilayer as needed. Water must go through a special pore called an Aquaporin since fat (lipid) and water don't mix.

Learn the Secret to Success on the Biology STAAR Exam. After nearly 20 years of teaching, Lewis Morris discovered a startling fact: Most students didn't struggle with the subject; they struggled with the language. It was never about brains or ability. His students simply didn't have the knowledge of the specific language needed to succeed. Through experimentation and research, he discovered that for any subject, there was a list of essential words that, when mastered, unlocked a student's ability to progress in the subject. Lewis called this set of vocabulary the Insider's Words. When he applied these Insider's Words, the results were incredible. His students began to learn with ease. He was on his way to developing the landmark series of Books and Applications to teach this Insider's Language to students around the world. Our books and applications are helpful to any student. They are especially helpful to struggling students, English language learners, and students beginning a course of study. The strongest students will also enjoy the puzzle and game aspect of the books. In all cases, the books provide an enjoyable break from the tedious and mundane experience of traditional test preparation. Get your copy today. N.B.
