Competency-Based and Social-Situational Approaches for Facilitating Learning in Higher Education

Strohschen, Gabriele I.E., Lewis, Kim, 2019-05-15 As the paradigm of education in academia continues to shift towards more diversity and inclusion educators need to consider incorporating a both and mindset when designing relevant education models in adult education In order to attain a cross sector collaboration among diverse stakeholders innovative education practice settings with instructional strategies that meet the learning needs of every student need to be evaluated and implemented Competency Based and Social Situational Approaches for Facilitating Learning in Higher Education is a critical research resource that discusses project based and social situational instructional practices within community engagement as a method for educating adults The approaches to designing and implementing learning activities show how to optimize community and business knowledge assets to collaboratively design and implement curricula in order to work toward social justice and community development Divided into three sections this publication provides extensive coverage on the design and delivery of academic programs instructional approaches and more making it an ideal resource for professionals adult education practitioners faculty administrators community activists researchers and academicians Western Water Policy Review Act of 1991 United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Energy and Natural Resources. Subcommittee on Water and Power, 1992 Resources in Education , 2000-10 Subject Guide to Books in Print , 1997 Environmental Water Markets and Regulation Katherine Owens, 2016-11-18 River systems around the world are degraded and are being used unsustainably Meeting this challenge requires the development of flexible regimes that have the potential to meet essential consumptive needs while restoring environmental flows This book focuses on how water trading frameworks can be repurposed for environmental water recovery and aims to conceptualise the most appropriate role for law in supporting recovery through these frameworks The author presents a comprehensive study of the legal frameworks in four jurisdictions the States of Oregon and Colorado in the western United States the province of Alberta in Canada and the Murray Darling Basin in Australia Basin State of New South Wales A close comparative analysis of these four jurisdictions reveals a variety of distinctive regulatory arrangements and collaborations between public and private actors In all cases the law has been deployed to steer and coordinate these water governance activities The book argues that each regime is based on a particular regulatory strategy with different conceptions of the appropriate roles for and relationships between various actors and institutions Legal frameworks do not have the capacity to rationalise and provide an overarching and absolute solution to the complex environmental and governance issues that arise in the context of environmental water transactions Rather the role of law in this context needs to be reconceptualised within the paradigm of regulatory capitalism as establishing and maintaining the limits within which regulatory participants can operate innovate and collaborate
