The Letters of William Lloyd Garrison William Lloyd Garrison, 1971 By 1861 William Lloyd Garrison's public image had progressed from that of impulsive fanatic to one of widely respected and influential abolitionist As editor of The Liberator and president of the American Anti Slavery Society he was the acknowledged spokesman for radical antislavery opinion Garrison was profoundly disturbed by the advent of war In his correspondence he kept military events at a distance focusing on the morality of the conflict an issue made the more poignant by his eldest son's enlistment in the 55th Massachusetts Regiment in 1863 the same year that his wife suffered a paralytic stroke Gradually he became convinced that the war would effect the abolition he had sought for so many years Likewise his attitude toward Lincoln underwent significant changes he moved from critic to supporter defending the President's re-election against the arguments of fellow abolitionists His visit with Lincoln in the White House he described as a very satisfactory one indeed for he was pleased with Lincoln's spirit and the familiar and candid way in which he unbosomed himself With the war ended and his goal as abolitionist achieved Garrison discontinued The Liberator and withdrew from the American Anti Slavery Society Fortunately friends arranged for a national testimonial that provided financial security By 1866-1867 he was enjoying an active retirement with honors at home and abroad and a plump and cunning first grandchild His letters show Garrison as a family man and curious observer as well as a reformer with a vision of a free and peaceful land

Writing the Siege of Leningrad Cynthia Simmons, Nina M. Perlina, 2012-01-12 Silver Winner ForeWord Magazine Book of the Year History From September 1941 until January 1944 Leningrad suffered under one of the worst sieges in the history of warfare At least one million civilians died many during the terribly cold first winter Bearing the brunt of this hardship and keeping the city alive through their daily toil and sacrifice were the women of Leningrad Yet their perspective on life during the siege has been little examined Cynthia Simmons and Nina Perlina have searched archival holdings for letters and diaries written during the siege conducted interviews with survivors and collected poetry fiction and retrospective memoirs written by the blokadnitsy women survivors to present a truer picture of the city under siege In simple direct even heartbreaking language these documents tell of lost husbands mothers children meager rations often supplemented with sawdust and other inedible additives crime cruelty and even cannibalism They also relate unexpected acts of kindness and generosity attempts to maintain cultural life through musical and dramatic performances and provide insight into a group of ordinary women reaching beyond differences in socioeconomic class ethnicity and profession in order to survive in extraordinary times
