Good - Fourth Edition John E. Thomas, Wilfrid J. Waluchow, Elisabeth Gedge, 2014-07-11 Well and Good presents a combination of classic and little known cases in health care ethics These cases accompanied by information about the major ethical theories give students a chance to grapple with the ethical challenges faced by health care practitioners policy makers and recipients The authors narrative style and leading questions provoke interest and engagement while allowing readers to work through complicated issues for themselves This fourth edition includes an expanded discussion of feminist ethics as well as new cases addressing pandemic ethics humanitarian aid the social determinants of health research and Aboriginal communities and a number of other emerging issues      Communication and Bioethics at the End of Life Lori

A. Roscoe, David P. Schenck, 2017-12-07 This casebook provides a set of cases that reveal the current complexity of medical decision making ethical reasoning and communication at the end of life for hospitalized patients and those who care for and about them End of life issues are a controversial part of medical practice and of everyday life Working through these cases illuminates both the practical and philosophical challenges presented by the moral problems that surface in contemporary end of life care Each case involved real people with varying goals and constraints who tried to make the best decisions possible under demanding conditions Though there were no easy solutions nor ones that satisfied all stakeholders there are important lessons to be learned about the ways end of life care can continue to improve This advanced casebook is a must read for medical and nursing students students in the allied health professions health communication scholars bioethicists those studying hospital and public administration as well as for practicing physicians and educators      Competence and Vulnerability in Biomedical Research Philip Bielby, 2008-09-16 Enhanced knowledge of the nature and causes of mental disorder have led increasingly to a need for the recruitment of cognitively vulnerable participants in biomedical research These individuals often fall into the grey area between obvious decisional competence and obvious decisional incompetence and as a result may not be recognised as having the legal capacity to make such decisions themselves At the core of the ethical debate surrounding the participation of cognitively vulnerable individuals in research is when if at all we should judge them decisionally and legally competent to consent to or refuse research participation on their own behalf and when they should be judged incompetent in this respect In this book the author develops a novel justificatory framework for making judgments of decisional competence to consent to biomedical research with reference to five groups of cognitively vulnerable individuals older children and adolescents adults with intellectual disabilities adults with depression adults with schizophrenia and adults with dementia including Alzheimer s disease Using this framework the author argues that we can make morally defensible judgments about the competence or incompetence of a potential participant to give contemporaneous consent to research by having regard to whether a judgment of competence would be more harmful to the generic rights of the potential participant than a judgment of incompetence The argument is also used to justify an account of supported decision making in research and applied to evaluate the extent to which this approach is evident in existing ethical guidelines and legal provisions The book will be of interest to bioethicists as well as psychiatrists and academic medical lawyers interested in normative questions raised by the concepts of competence and capacity

The Ethics of Medical Involvement in Capital Punishment Joseph B.R. Gaie, 2006-04-11 The morality of capital punishment has been debated for a long time This however has 1 not resulted in the settlement of the question either way Philosophers are still divided In this work I am not addressing the morality of capital punishment per se My question is different but related It is this Whether or not capital punishment is morally right is it moral or immoral for medical doctors to be involved in the practice To deal with this question I start off in Chapter One delineating the sort of involvement the medical associations consider to be morally problematic for medical doctors in capital punishment They make a distinction between what they call 2 medicalisation of and involvement in capital punishment and argue that there is a moral distinction between the two Whilst it is morally acceptable for doctors to be involved in capital punishment according to the medical associations it is immoral to medicalise the practice I clarify this position and show what moral issues arise I then suggest that there should not be a distinction between the two The medical associations argue that the medicalisation of capital punishment especially the use by medical doctors of lethal injection to execute condemned prisoners is immoral and therefore should be prohibited because it involves doctors in doing what is against the aims of medicine
